

Faculty Engagement

NJHIMA Annual Meeting
June 21, 2018

John Richey, MBA, RHIA, FAHIMA
AHIMA Academic Affairs Subject Matter Expert

Objectives

Today you will learn:

- 1) Three primary challenges facing educators
- 2) Ways in which CSAs can help faculty address those challenges
- 3) Where to direct faculty/members to AHIMA resources when they reach out for support from the CSA
- 4) How CSAs can encourage faculty/members to become and remain engaged

Faculty face three primary challenges:

1. Maintain subject matter expertise/industry knowledge and bring that into the classroom
2. Continue their own professional development, with a focus on teaching excellence
3. Support student success

Ways CSAs Can Help Faculty Members

- Faculty-focused meetings/webinars
- Content specific meetings/webinars
- HIM community networking and advocacy opportunities

Ways CSAs Can Help Faculty Members (continued)

- Public community engagement
- Volunteer opportunities
- PPE recognition
  - PPE luncheon
  - PPE ribbon
  - PPE mentor recognition
  - PPE awareness and advocacy

Ways in which CSAs can support faculty engagement

- Continually communicate the above opportunities to your membership; using every available communication channel
- Develop new resources and tools
- Repeat - communicate, develop, communicate, develop . . .
- AHIMA resources

How can CSAs encourage faculty members to become and remain engaged?

- Doing everything we already spoke about
- Become aware yourself - of the full range of faculty engagement resources, products and services available (take full advantage of the ones that are of most value to you)
- Inform others; ask and encourage them to do the same
